

EMOTION POEMS

Walt: To come up with emotion poems use some of the poetic devices

HAPPINESS

Happiness is a wonderful, sentimental feeling
I see my friends calling me over to joke around and live life
I hear children laughing like there's no tomorrow
I smell freshly mown grass on the field of fun
I touch what seems to be the sun in my world of curiosity
I taste the sweetness of friendship and family

FEAR

Fear can change your perspective on life
I see my life flash before my eyes
I hear terrifying screams as I slip into unconsciousness
I smell the distinction of worry from everyone around me
I touch what lives' I can while still sane
I taste sorrow as my world slowly fades away

SADNESS

Sadness is where you feel your world is falling apart
I see my eyes full with tears as I try to blink then back
I hear my friends laugh as they try to cheer me up
I smell happiness around me the emotion I can feel no longer
I touch my wet face and realise once again that I am crying
I taste water as I try to drench my dry throat

FORGIVENESS

Forgiveness is what makes friendship worth while I see my friends come over to hug me as we say sorry
I hear the laughter of my other friends, thankful we are no longer fighting
I smell sympathy in the air
I touch her shirt as we hug forgivingly
I taste my tears as they stream down my face with joy and happiness
