Improving Side-line Behaviour in Sport

Over recent years, we have seen a steady increase in aggressive and inappropriate side-line behaviour during school sports tournaments and events. The aggression, usually verbal, is aimed at match officials, tournament organisers, coaches, opposition supporters and sometimes even the children who are playing. More frequently, this aggression is also becoming physical, making the event uncomfortable and unpleasant for other spectators and the children participating.

Part of our student leadership development is to train older students (Years 7&8) to referee/umpire sports events for their younger peers. This is a great opportunity for them to take a leadership role, it can help develop their self-confidence and it gives them a well-rounded view of their chosen sport. Our senior students are fantastic in these roles and we frequently receive comments from tournament organisers about how professional and reliable they are.

Unfortunately, student umpires/referees have also become a target for side-line aggression which is putting a lot of students off continuing in this role, or giving it a go in the first place. Sports tournaments simply can't go ahead without officials, so this side-line behaviour is putting our inter-school sports programme at risk.

The Bay Suburbs Sports Group, which we are part of, has decided to take some positive action against these increasing levels of poor side-line behaviour, by handing out flyers at events reminding spectators of how to behave when watching junior sport. Eventually the group will also have signage that we can take to events to support this initiative.

With our school Athletics Sports Days coming up, it is a good time to remind everyone of the behaviour we, as adults, should be modelling to our children.

Week 2 Term 4 Property Report

The school has finally settled after two weeks of ruckus and noise, especially from the construction area. It's been very loud, occasionally a buzz or a bang or even a clang will come from the site with no forewarning. At first, it was scaring the wits out of us, but now everybody, including the teachers, have become used to it.

If you get close enough, you can see inside the building and the foundations look about done. With a little bit of paint and carpet, it will be breath-taking! It will be able to house many things within it (including a bunch of children) and will be an amazing space for us next year and an even greater library!

Now, getting back on topic, all the first-floor concrete has been poured and set. By my next report, the roof should have been put up and the deck should be finished. In the meantime, have a good two weeks!

Parent Information Sessions

Thank you to the parents who attended our sessions on Flexible Learning Spaces and Collaborative Teaching and Learning at St Thomas's School. This was hosted by Principal, Michael Maher and Deputy Principal, Ingrid May with guest speakers Jacque Allen and Lisa Horton. Jacque has worked with our staff over many years to strengthen our collaborative teaching practices as we utilise our new teaching spaces. Lisa started working with our staff this year on how we are using these new spaces, how students move around, where they choose to carry out their learning, types of furniture and how we could further develop our quiet learning spaces. After the talk we visited some classrooms to see how staff have modified the spaces after feedback and guidance from Lisa.

These informative sessions support parents to better understand how we have ended up with flexible learning spaces, such as the new build which is currently underway. They show how these spaces are utilised and adapted for learners and the type of teaching and learning which goes on in the new style of buildings which the Ministry of Education are providing around the country.

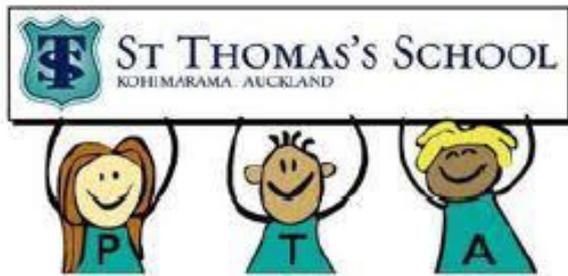

Attached is a link to the presentation and we are working through a question and answer document for parents which will further support an understanding of the changing face of education as we adapt to new building infrastructure. <http://www.stthomas.school.nz/21st-century-learning.html>

Dogs on School Grounds

We have continual issues with people bringing dogs onto the school grounds and in recent weeks staff have had to clean up over 15 dog faeces. Animal faeces contain campylobacter which can make our students and staff sick. Please do not bring your dogs onto the school grounds and be receptive to staff who ask you to remove your dog as they are trying to keep our children safe. If you walk your dog to school to drop off or pick up your child, do not tie them to the entrances where students are walking in and out as some children are nervous around dogs and we do not want any child bitten.

Students Being Collected During School Hours

Parents collecting children during school hours must report to the office first. The parent needs to sign the child out on the tablet and will be given a slip to give to the class teacher. No children will be allowed to go with an adult without the slip being provided to the teacher. Also, no children can be signed out during Morning Tea or Lunch breaks, 10:30 – 10:50 and 12:30 to 1:30.
